

SPORT MANAGEMENT

WASHINGTON STATE UNIVERSITY
College of Education

3.3

The average GPA of students admitted to the major.

580+

Practicum and internship hours students complete with agencies, in multiple fields, by the time they graduate. These students are ready to seamlessly transition into careers in sport and recreation industries.

“Sport and Popular Culture,” or SPMGT 101, is the only sport-themed diversity (DIVR) course among the University Common Requirements (UCORE). Start learning about sport in your first semester... You won’t look at it the same way again!

100+

Undergraduate Sport Management students each semester who develop professional skills and gain practical experience in a Pac-12 athletic department, university recreation center, or community parks and recreation setting.

Number of students in our upper-division courses. We keep classes small to encourage participation and form relationships with our future graduates.

300+

Students currently pursuing a bachelor’s degree in Sport Management. That’s more than 300 aspiring leaders in the field of amateur or professional sport and recreation.

4

Continents of origin of our faculty. Providing students with a truly global perspective on sport.

$20,000+

Money raised by students each year through the program’s capstone event management course. Students plan and carry out sport-related events to benefit dozens of local and national nonprofit organizations.

$24,575

Average scholarship funds awarded to Sport Management students over the last two years.

Helping students pursue their studies — and their dreams. This would not be possible without vital donor support.

$1,000,000

A transformational estate gift made to our scholarship fund by program pioneer and Title IX trailblazer Jo Washburn.
